HENS AMONG THE FRUIT TREES

Here and there are seen apple and plum orchards used for poultry yards. The plum orchard seems to be the favorite. There are several advant-for cultivation. This would apply more to a full-grown orchard than to a young one, for in the case of the growing orchard it is best to cultivate during the early years to compel the roots to strike deeply.

A plum orchard used as a poultry park should be in the best condition for bearing fruit. If the fowls are no inconsiderable item, in the fertili-

RACING FORECAST—Milton Young May Win From Older Horses in Second Event at Fair Grounds.

YOUNGSTERS MEET OLD HORSES TO-DAY

Two-Year-Olds Asked to Cover the Six-Furlong Route With Aged Division.

YOUNG MAY WIN.

Chinn Colt Looks Capable of Beating the Field-Autumn Leaves Seems Able to Capture Feature.

******* REPUBLIC AGAIN LEADS IN PICKING WINNERS. .

The Republic again led all other . St. Louis daily newspapers in winning selections at the Fair Grounds . last week. In the six days of rading it gave to its readers eleven . winners, a good percentage, considering the frequent and sudden & changes of track conditions.

The paper most closely approaching this mark had ten winners, while the next two papers had but the pine winners each.

Two-year-olds will be asked to meet older horses in the second race at the Fair Grounds to-day, and it looks as if the youngsters could hold their own well with their seniors. It seems as if Milton Young. Old England.

Miss Powell and Tim Hurst could give Sale. their opponents all kinds of trouble. Each 2-year-old has run some good races, and it appears as if a pretty contest should result.

With a four-horse race as a feature, fourth on the programme, chances look bright for the Heliebush mare, Autumn Leaves, carrying off the best-sized part of the purse.

On the basis of heat in the second contest of the purse.

On the basis of her last race, when she

On the basis of her last race, when she drew up on Frank Bell in the last few strides until the O'Neall gelding barely got his nose past the finish in the lead, it seems that she can be selected here today, even against so strong a contender as Old Stone.

The Mattingly colt will likely be favorite to-day. Regardless of track conditions, public play will probably make him the first betting choice. At the distance of one mile he would look considerably the best. But at the three-quarrier route it seems that two of his opponents may beat him. He carries 107 pounds, and is a 3-year-old. He could likely give to the older Autumn Leaves this weight at a longer journey. But Old Stone has yet to show anything startling at six furlongs, and it really appears as if Clem Hellebush can carry of first honors with his somewhat unlucky mare.

really appears as if Clem Hellebush can carry of first honors with his somewhat unlucky mare.

Harnakis has been doing nicely, of late. He has run some good races, has finished strongly and seems to be able to make a good showing on fast footing, as well as on a slower track. Early in the year he was troubled with sensitive feet, which worried him on hard or lumpy going.

He has shown enough form at six furlongs to justify the belief that he also may finish ahead of Old Stone. Bugler hardly ranks to beat any of the trio, but is a shifty enough coit to be a disturbing factor in the race on certain kinds of going.

In the fifth event, Miss Eon should come back to her form of Saturday. She won then in handy enough style from Neversuch and Boaster. Opinions may differ as to whether the race was truly run. But the mere fact that she was up at the end with the contenders of this class seems to give a distinct advantage to her here.

Nettle Regent can be selected for second place on suspicion rather than on recent performances. In trim, she can beat this crowd. She has not much to defeat this afterneon with Miss Eon out of it.

Sting and Feronia may give some trouble and Hucens showed a brief fact of sevent

In the last race The Bugaboo looks well.

He ran nicely his last out, beating Pretension handly. Pretension would certainly be regarded as a factor here. Buccleuth and Iras look well for the place and show rostitions.

cleuth and Iras look well for the place and show positions.

Yada should win the third race. Her last local start resulted in such bungling handling by Jockey Wilson that he was disbarred from further appearances here. Princess Orna was beaten off by A. Muskoday recently, and this does not entitle her to any particular credit, while the route should favor Hadrian. Moreover, Hadrian received a rather weak ride his last out and should do better this time.

Milton Young, Miss Powell and Tim Hurst is the manner in which the second race may be decided.

Nepenthe looks well in the opening event as she stumbled in her last race, yet was Nepenthe looks well in the opening event, should be close up.

POULTRY IN WET WEATHER.

The damp, wet seasons are more in-jurious to the fowls than is the cold, dry weather of winter. Dampness is the source of one-half the diseases. It is not so much the amount of water they come in actual contact with, as the constant humidity of the air and dampuess of their surroundings. Damp weather means an accumulation of mud and filth in the yards and coops, which is always in a state of decomposition, and a source of annoy-ance. To avoid this difficulty the coops should be cleaned daily and the floors sprinkled with fine, dry land plaster, or dry earth. The yards should be drained, and every precaution used to turn the water away. In the case of chicks they quickly succumb to damp-ness. The moisture is constantly being evaporated, thus carrying off the animal heat. The same is true of adult fowls. They do not get wet so far as the water passing through the feathers on their backs is concerned, but the under parts of their bodies have ro protection against the water on the ground, which soaks in and chills them, the result being roup and other diseases which arise from colds. A few pinches of red pepper in the food is excellent for them at such quick wit in coaching, gave to the St. Louis Cardinals a ninth-inning victory and their seventh successive win in a game that sparkled with excitement at Lengue Park yesterday.

the score and tallying the winning run in the last inning, with two out, when the game looked to be labeled for the visitors Brooklyn opened the ninth inning with the score a tie, each side having three runs to their credit. By fast playing the visitors got a runner over the plate, and the game looked to be theirs.

Brain opened the ninth for the locals by fanning. Mike Grady followed with corking triple down the left-field line. Mike's rap endowed the fans with new courage, as any kind of a hit to the outfeld would mean a tie, and they gave to Mike a rousing reception when he sat on third base after his rap. Smoot followed with a free pass to first. Barciay lifted with a free pass to first. Barciay lifted up a pop which McCormick smothered. With two out, Smoot stole second. Jimmy Burke was at the bat, and the responsibility of the game rested on his shoulders. A hit meant at the least a tie and probably a victory.

Ten thousand fains were rapt in every movement made by Burke. They had known Jimmy as a scrappy, aggressive by! player who usually delivered the goods, and they put their trust in him again.

Cronin wound and unwound himself.

The plum orchard seems to be the favorite. There are several advantages in favor of this combination.

In the first place it greatly increases the size of the poultry yard, and this is worth considering. Then the hens keep the ground pretty well clear of weeds, and this removes the necessity for the poultry mould apply. BURKE'S TIMELY HIT.

The crack of the ball, accompanied by the frenzied cheering of the fans, proclaimed that the hit was safe, that Grady had scored and that St. Louis had tled the score. The fans cheered Burke long the score. The fans cheered Burks long and loud.

The Brooklyn players were rattled. Burke was cool as the proverbial iceberg, and with his quick Celtic wit mapped out a plan of action to win the game while the Brooklyn players were exploring the empyrean heights.

Smoot was on third, Burke gave the signal for a double steal. His tantalising actions on the base path between first and second drew a wild pass from the excited Ritter-and Smoot crossed the plate with the winning taily.

While the game was erratic at times, it was so exciting that the fans forgot all about the miscues of the players.

SCORED IN FIRST.

SCORED IN FIRST. Brooklyn got off in the lead, scoring two uns in the first inning. St. Louis evened matters by scoring two in the fourth Brooklyn regained the lead in the fifth. Not until the eighth inning did St. Louis again tie the score. Shay's daring work put the locals in the game at this period. The Frisco recruit opened with a single and stole second. By an exceedingly fast sprint he crossed the plate when Dobbs dropped Shannon's fly.

Brooklyn went ahead for the third time in the ninth inning, when they scored a run, but St. Louis, not to be outdone, batted out two runs and the game in their half of the ninth.

Cronin, who nitched for the visitors, was half of the ninth.

Cronin, who pitched for the visitors, was very effective. He let the locals down with seven hits, while his comrades punctured McFarland for eleven. He only walked two batters and fanned two, while McFarland walked four and fanned four. Dillon's bunt, a base on balls to Lumley Dobbs's single and an error by Brain gave to Brooklyn two runs in the first inning.

A base on balls to Shannon, Brain's single, Eckley's infield out, Brain's steal of second and bad throws by Ritter and Gessler gave to St. Louis two runs in the fourth.

Doubles by Dilion and Dobbs put Brook-lyn in the lead again by giving a tally to them. Shay's single, his steal of second and Dobbs's error gave to the locals their third Dobbs's error gave to the locals their third run in the eighth.

A pass to Ritter, McCormick's force hit and singles by Cronin and Gessler gave to the Brooklyns a run in the ninth.

St. Louis won, however, Grady's triple, Burke's single and Ritter's had throw to second, trying to catch Burke stealing gave to St. Louis two runs and the game with two men out in the ninth.
